

neurodivers³

My Bad-Day Protocol

For when I cannot use my words.

A page my people can follow when I have run out of words.

My Bad-Day Protocol

Sometimes I cannot use my words. This is not about you. When you see my signal, please follow the steps below in order.

My signal is:

When you see it, please:

1. Don't ask questions yet.
2. Lower the lights and the noise.
3. Bring water and a snack within reach.
4. Sit nearby, no contact unless I ask.
5. Wait. I'll text when I can.

What usually helps me come back:

What usually makes it worse:

When I am back, I might want:

quiet company food no plans a walk talking it through not talking about it ☐ something else:

Before you go

Where this fits

Signals & Status Messages

Shorter messages for the moment.

neurodivers3.co.uk/store

The Good-Day Conversation

How to agree this protocol on a good day.

neurodivers3.co.uk/store

Masking Recovery Pack

For the recovery after.

neurodivers3.co.uk/store

Newsletter

One honest email when there's something worth saying.

neurodivers3.co.uk/newsletter

About neurodivers³

neurodivers³ is a home for honest stories, practical tools, and ideas for making everyday life work better with a neurodivergent brain. I make resources for late-diagnosed and self-identified neurodivergent adults who are tired of being told to try harder at systems that were never built for them. This protocol is not a clinical tool. It is a practical one. Use what helps; leave what does not.

— Ollie

Feedback invitation:

If this protocol helped someone help you, I'd love to know at hello@neurodivers3.co.uk.

Refundable for 14 days, no questions. Email hello@neurodivers3.co.uk within 14 days of purchase.